EXPERT MUSICIAN IS HEARD FROM

Mr. George Tudor Says Our Band Is To Be Complimented On Its Class of Music.

The following letter explains itself: Philadelphia, Pa., June 12th, 1921. Mr. J. B. Russell, Maysville, Ky., My Dear Old Friend and School-mate:—I wish to extend my sincere thanks for the program that you sent me, which was rendered on the 8th of June by your musical prodigies. It's surely a high compliment to you, you surely are taking great interest in the organization and it will not be your fault if it doesn't turn out to be one of the best bands in the U. S. Mr. Barnhardt also deserves the highest praise for the manner he is training the young musicians. In looking over the program, I see one piece with which I am quite familiar. It is called "Lustpiel Overture." When young boys can play such music, it alone speaks for their great talent. It will only be a short time until I have the pleasure to hear them, as it is my intention to pay my old home town a visit some time during the month of August. Wishing you the best of luck. I remain as ever your old friend, G. T. TUDOR.

INVALID CHILD WILL RECEIVE TREATMENT

Interest Taken In Little Invalid Orphan Who Will Receive Expert Treatment for Tuberculosis.

Little Irene Shields, nine years of age, an orphan, whose only brother was killed by lightning a few weeks ago, will receive expert medical treatment in an effort to effect a partial cure at least of her tubercular hip. The little girl has been at the Mason county infirmary for some time and Judge Purnell has now turned her over to Miss Linda Neville, former Health Nurse here and Miss Neville will endeavor to get her into the free hospital for incurables at Louisville.

Miss Neville writes Judge Purnell as follows:

"I wish you could peep into my sitting room where I am busy typing this letter. Irene Shields stands by the phonograph and radiantly put in one record after another, stopping now and then to tell me how glad she is to be able to put records in herself. She has a good ear for music, this minute she is playing Mendelssohn's Spring Song, on a ten-cent record.

"Early Saturday I telephoned to the Children's Free Hospital to ask if I might get Irene admitted that day and was told that the hospital was in quarantine, and would probably remain so until Saturday, June 18. I therefore kept Irene at my home. Here she sleeps on a cot in my room. Be sure that I am taking good care of her. Today I took her to a Lexington dentist for his advice for the time until I send her to the Children's Free Hospital in Louisville. She has a good appetite.

"I do not spoil her, I try to suppress a good deal of the sympathy I feel for her, at least not to let her know about it. She acts very normally and happily. I hope Dr. Barnett Owen can do a great deal for her."

TOBACCO MEETING AT BALL PARK THURSDAY AFTERNOON

Record Attendance Is Expected at the Tobacco Growers' Meeting To Be Addressed By Mr. Sapiro.

The local committee having in charge the arrangements for the Sapiro-Bingham meeting on Thursday have completed all arrangements for the accommodation of the crowd expected on that date to hear these two leaders present the co-operative plan for the marketing of Burley tobacco. The meeting will be held at the ball park. A tent capable of seating 2500 has been secured and the crowd will be made comfortable so that it can hear the speakers and have an opportunity to consider the plan as presented. The meeting will be at 2 o'clock in the afternoon in order to enable those from a distance to return home early that afternoon.

Great crowds have been present at all points where these gentlemen have spoken. They are the one most conversant with the movement and most capable of explaining the entire plan to the farmers.

The actual contracts have been received in Maysville and will be distributed at this meeting. It is expected that a large amount of tobacco will be pledged to the pool at this time.

Word has been received from the surrounding counties that representative delegations will be present from all of these counties to hear the discussion of this question. Mason county growers are fortunate in having one of the five meetings to be addressed by Mr. Sapiro the organizer of the co-operative movement.

MANY COMING FROM DISTANCE FOR SAPIRO MEETING.

It is understood that many people from nearby counties in Kentucky and Ohio will come to Maysville Thursday afternoon to hear the proposed co-operative marketing plan for tobacco growers explained by the author of the proposed plan. It is expected that many of the Mason county growers will attend and a record breaking crowd of growers is being planned for in the city.

YEGGMEN AT WORK IN TOWN OF RIPLEY

Safe at Ripley Meat Market Blown and Near Fifty Dollars Is Stolen.

The Ripley Bee says: Robbers blew the safe in J. P. Goldsberry's Meat Market about 3 o'clock Monday morning, and secured between forty and fifty dollars in money. Mr. Goldsberry having taken all the paper money from his Saturday night and Sunday morning sales home with him.

An entrance was made through the back way, and the safe was blown by some one who understood the business. The safe was a small one, and the holes in which the bolts entered were torn out and a piece below the door was blown off.

A number of people in the neighborhood were awakened by the explosion, and Mr. W. B. Clift saw a man passing by his place, and it now supposed that he was on guard.

Sheriff Neu and Deputy were here early Monday morning trying to get some clue, but there seems to be no trace of the robbers.

This is the first robbery that has occurred here in many years.

GOALS OF THE PROSECUTION'S WITNESSES IN WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON'S HEARING, THE DEFENSE OFFERED NO TESTIMONY AND EXECUTED HAIL.

Another charge of selling liquor to a minor which was filed in City Court against Gilbert has been held up pending the receipt of an opinion from the Attorney General on this phase of the state prohibition law.

DAUGHTERY TO GO AFTER GOUGERS.

Washington, June 15.—Contractors who preyed on the government in wartime and gathered extortionate profits are to be forced to disgorge.

Also, criminal statutes will be invoked against them.

Harry L. Daugherty, Attorney General, made this known Tuesday following a cabinet meeting at which the subject was discussed.

Investigation of war contracts with particular reference to those against which accusations have been made, will be carried out by a special division of the Department of Justice, which Daugherty is organizing.

Colonel Frank Long Winn, of the U. S. Army, is spending a few days here with relatives and shaking hands with many old friends.

HELD TO GRAND JURY ON CHARGE OF HAVING LIQUORS FOR SALE

William Gilbert Is Held for Grand Jury Investigation by 'Squire' Fred Bauer on Liquor Charge—Other Charges Held Up.

William Gilbert, who was arrested Tuesday evening by Chief of Police Harry A. Ort, was taken before 'Squire' Fred W. Bauer Wednesday afternoon on a charge of having liquor in his possession for the purpose of sale and held for grand jury investigation under a bail of $300 which was given.

Saturday evening Chief Ort arrested William McCord, 18 years old, on the streets in a drunken condition. McCord told Chief Ort that he had purchased a half-pint of moonshine whiskey from William Gilbert for which he paid him two dollars. McCord repeated this story on the witness stand Wednesday.

Believing that Gilbert had whiskey in his home Chief Ort Tuesday night obtained a search warrant and searched the Gilbert home in Front street where he found a gallon glass jug about one-third full and a quart bottle partly filled with moonshine whiskey. Gilbert said he purchased the whiskey from a Lewis county man.

After the presentation of the prosecution's witnesses in Wednesday afternoon's hearing, the defense offered no testimony and executed hail.

Another charge of selling liquor to a minor which was filed in City Court against Gilbert has been held up pending the receipt of an opinion from the Attorney General on this phase of the state prohibition law.

OUR POLICY:

And likewise to earnestly and consistently oppose all things that are not for the good of the county as a whole.

DEPARTMENTAL REDUCTIONS.

The New York Herald is publishing a series of articles analyzing public expenditures and pointing out the fact that some of the departments and bureaus are not co-operating in the desire of President Harding to secure a material reduction. It is, of course, utterly impossible that the Government should get back to a pre-war basis of public service. No one expects it. Had there been no war there would have been a normal increase in the number of public employees practically in proportion to the increase in population.

While the purpose of the Herald in trying to encourage economy is commendable, that paper is in error in leaving the impression that Congress has been at fault. The Republican Congress lopped immense sums from the estimates of the Departments during the closing years of the Wilson administration, but the executive proceeded with the huge scale of expenditures and bequeathed large deficits to the Republican administration now but three months in power. The fault lies with the expending and not with the appropriating branch of the government, and with the last preceding administration rather than with the present. Up to June 30, the end of the fiscal year, the Harding administration is spending money chiefly in accordance with engagements made by the Wilson administration.

In 1912 one of the principal charges of the Democratic campaign was that the Republicans had built up an unnecessarily large governmental machine with needless employees on the public pay roll. They promised a reduction in this expense. They very soon found, however, that their charge was absolutely without justification and instead of reducing the number of public employees they made very radical increases. They not only added new bureaus to the public service but increased the personnel of bureaus already in existence.

Throughout the Wilson Administration there was a consistent effort to have the Government enlarge its activities and perform many duties that had previously been left to the states or to private enterprise. This enlarged scope of Government service can never be entirely abandoned and, in many instances, it can not be greatly reduced. There are, however, many opportunities in connection with departments and Bureaus which were greatly enlarged on account of military activity, where reductions can and should be made. It was doubtless in these departments that President Harding expected most of the savings to be accomplished when he urged so emphatically in one of his public addresses that expenses be cut down in order that taxes may later be reduced and the burden on the people materially lifted. It was a lifting of taxes rather than a shifting the President desired.

Of course, each department, board and commission is impressed with the importance of its own work. Each is thoroughly convinced that the public welfare would be impaired if its forces are reduced. It is perfectly manifest, however, that if any reduction is to be accomplished it can not be done by each department expecting the others to do the renechering.

The Republican party will have some election contests on its hands in 1922. It will be well for the party, if the record of the administration is such in the matter of public expenditures that campaign speakers and Republican editors will not be required to take a defensive position.

CAMP ROOSEVELT, BOY BUILDER.

Camp Roosevelt, established primarily for Chicago boys, but now available to boys twelve years or more old from all localities, is entering its third season, and affords an unusual combination of attractions for the summer vacation and recreation season of the American boy. The tent city, on the shores of Lake Michigan, near Muskegon, Michigan, under the management of officers of the United States Army, assisted by instructors from the Chicago Board of Education, the American Red Cross, the Boy Scouts of America, the Y. M. C. A., and Knights of Columbus, accommodates upwards of a thousand boys.

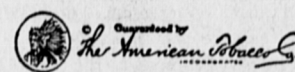

The summer high school, which is a part of the Chicago High school system, and whose credits are recognized throughout the country, occupies the morning period of a large number of students. The military course, including the general courses of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, attracts many others. The Scoutcraft training, for boys under fourteen, qualifies for the various Scout tests.

Red Cross officials teach first aid, life saving, and health. The daily routine for all boys includes out-of-door athletics of every appropriate kind, baseball, basketball, track athletics, boxing, hiking, bivouac camping, and especially swimming. Every boy learns to swim. There are four camp periods of two weeks each, the

"Something to Think About"

Both of their hearts fed only on memories. Both of their lives seemed ruined. Behind them folly. Before them wealth without love. One day the Great Thing came—something even bigger than love—something you'll think about, too. A romance that scales the heights and plumbs the depths of human experience set in a riot of color and beauty. A throbbing with the mightiest heart appeal ever attained in a picture.

New York Letter

by
Lucy Jeanne Price

New York. — Any one who looks up on New York as a cold, mind-our-own-business city, should talk to Lucinda Flynn, of "Life." No one can tell the story like Miss Flynn, but it's pretty good even at second-hand. She was lunching at a popular tea-room the other day, when a brick, commanding woman took the seat opposite her. "What is that you are eating?" crisply she asked. "Cheese souffle," murmured Miss Flynn. "Is it good?" No. It's cold and the cheese is too strong. "Really?" exclaimed the woman. "And I notice you have eaten soup. You shouldn't do that a luncheon. It's really quite bad for you." Miss Flynn murmured again — to the effect that she like soup at lunch. "You seem an interesting sort of person," said the sociable one. "Do you mind if I look at you through my glasses?" "Not at all" replied the by-this-time-subdued Miss Flynn. "Wouldn't you like to join my luncheon club?" was the next startling query. "There are just twelve. But one of the members died, and I should like to have you fill the vacancy." "Oh, I'm sorry, but I'm not a club-joining person at all. I'm too busy, too. I'm sorry," apologized the member of Life's staff. "That's quite all right. Any number of people are very anxious to join it. Do you ever parade? Wouldn't you like to march in my parade? By the way what is your name?" "Lucinda Flynn," she said meekly. "And may I ask what is yours," thinking she would like to do something except answering the catechism. "Oh! Really! Don't you know me?" exclaimed the catchising woman. "I'm Mrs. John—". Well, I won't tell it, but it was an exceedingly well-known name in New York club circles. "Will you join our parade?" Again Miss Flynn had to murmur regretful declination and fled before any more questions or exclamations could be forthcoming.

If you were really going to steal anyway, wouldn't you choose the best thin got its kind lying around loose and unguarded? I wonder why people compromise so often by stealing mildly, as it were. For instance: Yesterday sixteen automobiles were stolen in this city and nine of the sixteen were of the sort known flippantly as "flivers." I don't approve of stealing autos, of course, and anyway "flivers" are perfectly good cars, but if they were going to steal anyway—I have seen SUCH good-looking, luxurious ones scattered about our streets.

Eleanor Painter, now starring in the new production, "The Last Waltz," by Oscar Strauss, is planning an early return to grand opera. When she was in that rare atmosphere before she was comparatively unimportant in the overwhelming surroundings. But her musical comedy experience — and her success in it — has given her just the training necessary, she believes, for the climbing of that more aspiring ladder. Last season, Miss Painter was the role of Dolores in the revival of "Flora Dora." "But there's nothing in light opera to compare with Strauss for grand opera preparation," she says.

Among the passengers landing from one of the big liners the other day were an ex-Secretary of State, a movie "vamp," and an ex-champion bantam-weight prize fighter. Of the three, Johnny Coulton, ex-pugilist, was the center of the greatest throng of on-lookers. Because Johnny it was who had all Europe forgetting its territorial tangles last winter in trying to solve the inability of strong men to life him from his feet when he decided not to be lifted. You remember? Everything from black magic to the laws of relativity was brought forward as a possible explanation. But they never did really get it. And Johnny was keeping pretty quiet about his secret during the volley of questions at the dock.

Hair dressing is a serious matter. Every once in a while somebody gets $500 damages for a broken leg of cut-off foot or something of that sort. But the other day a New York woman, Agnes Gilson, was awarded $2,000 damages in a suit against a hair dresser because he burned her scalp while he was waving her hair.

Perhaps the most enterprising boot-black in the world frequents Park Row and startles customers by his cry, "Two cents; Two cents!" Many curious persons stop to ask him what he means by this reasonable-sounding request of the world, and are informed that for two cents he will brush the shoes up, for five cents give them a "pretty good shine," and for a dime make them glisten like the hall of mirrors.

There have been a good many stories of undisturbed calm on the part of actors when it took courage and good nerves to be calm; but not often has a whole company shown the control that was displayed during a performance of "Sally" the other night. While the whole last scene was being played firemen were fighting flames in a property room, and the entire company was slopping through water half an inch deep to reach the stage and their dressing rooms. The audience sat in utter ignorance of the drama behind the scenes.

WEED AND FIELD SEED ARE MIXED
Sour Dock Worst of 125 Varieties
Found By Careful Examination, Says Expert.

One hundred and twenty-five varieties of weed seed would be found by a careful examination of field seeds sold in Kentucky during the year, according to Prof. E. C. Vaughan, of the botanical department of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. Of these, he says, sour dock well might be called the worst, with rib grass, yellow dock, plantain, chickweed, peppergrass, cheat, with grass, dodder and Canada thistle, joining it to make up the ten varieties found most frequently. Sour dock sometimes is called sheep sorrel or red sorrel.

Prof. Vaughan's statement regarding weeds was made in reply to a question put to him by a newspaper man who had noted the rankness of weeds in fields which had been plowed and allowed to stand for several months. When plowed most of the fields showed no signs of weeds, but within a few months was covered with them. Many, he said, are perennials and fragments of root remaining in the soil result in a growth as soon as the weather and proper season comes around.

Speaking of the characteristics of the most common weeds and how to get rid of them, Prof. Vaughan said: "Sour dock well might be called the worst weed. It is a perennial and is propagated abundantly by its running rootstocks as well as by seeds. It thrives on slightly sandy, acid soils, and often crowds out useful crops. The best way of controlling it seems to be by liming so that field crops will grow with sufficient vigor to smother the sour dock. The seeds are found most frequently in clovers.

"Rib grass, a perennial, also thrives on light sandy soils. The seeds are found mostly in clovers and alfalfa. When only a few plants occur in a field they may be removed by hand digging, but when a considerable quantity of plants are found it is best to plow and cultivate until they are destroyed. The thickened rootstocks of this weed must be thoroughly removed in all efforts of digging and cultivation.

"Yellow dock is a perennial and is a bad pest about yards and farm out-buildings. The seeds are common in clover and alfalfa seeds; the plants harbor both the melon louse and the corn root louse. Yearly pulling and deep grubbing are required to destroy them and this must be done before the seeds mature.

"Plantain, a perennial, is a serious pest in manure land seeded to clovers. It also is found about yards and waste places. Continuous cultivation until the plants disappear is the best remedy.

"Chickweed, an annual, blooms almost the entire year and ripens seeds so early that it is difficult to clean out. It is a host of the melon louse. The best control is a winter crop such as ry or hairy vetch.

"Cheat is a winter annual and is most troublesome in wheat fields, the seeds fall to the ground, where they remain and maintain their vitality for several years, coming up when conditions are favorable. When fields are infested in this way they should be cultivated continuously for several seasons. "Witch grass is an annual which must be prevented from maturing seeds by cutting and removal or burning. It is not a serious pest, but the seeds are found quite frequently in field seeds.

"The dodders are annuals which are found very often in clover and alfalfa fields. They are parasites, growing from seeds, but soon losing all connection with the ground and living on the host plants, about which they twine their tiny straw colored stems. Small isolated patches should be buried. Badly infested fields should be plowed up and some cultivated crop grown. In no case should seeds be saved from fields containing dodder.

"Canada thistle is a perennial that is hard to eradicate. It is propagated both by seeds and rootstocks. While it is a very serious pest, its noxious character perhaps has been overrated. Repeated cutting with a hoe and application of salt, cut oil or sulphuric acid to cut the stems in the ground is the cheapest and most effective remedy."

Ever have a "low-down" pain in the back?

In the "small" right over the hips? That's the home of backache. It's caused by weak kidneys. Use Doan's Kidney Pills.

Maysville people testify to their worth. Read a case of it:

Mrs. R. L. Mattingly, 207 West Second street, Maysville, says: "I was in a bad condition with my back and kidneys. I couldn't get my proper rest at night owing to the dull misery in my back. I was feeling so miserable I often had to let my housework go undone. I was dizzy by spells and also suffered from rheumatic pains. I have been so bad that I couldn't walk without pushing a chair in front of me and my lower limbs were very painful. My kidneys were in a bad condition owing to their irregular action. My mother had used Doan's Kidney Pills successfully and that led me to send to Wood & Son's Drug Store and get a couple boxes. After using them I was all right. I have felt well since using Doan's and recommend them gladly."

THE HORSE RAPIDLY LEAVING KENTUCKY CITIES

Census Bureau's Figures Show That Animals Are Decreasing in Cities.

Washington, June 15.—The horse is being banished from Louisville and other Kentucky cities and the automobile is taking its place.

This is indicated by figures made public today by the Census Bureau showing that between 1910 and 1920 the number of horses in Louisville was reduced from 7,756 to 2,590.

Reductions reported by other Kentucky cities are as follows: Covington from 1,344 to 450; Lexington from 2,413 to 1,211, and Newport from 728 to 236.

With the exception of Lexington, there also was a reduction in the number of mules in Kentucky cities. No explanation could be obtained concerning why the number of mules in Lexington increased from 530 to 927. In Louisville during the same period they decreased from 41 to 26, and in Newport from 24 to 4.

In 1910 there were 113 sheep in Louisville while in 1920 there were only twenty. Hogs in Louisville increased more than 100 per cent. In 1910 there were 1,800 hogs in Louisville while in 1920 the number was 3,686. In Covington they increased from six to sixty-six, while in Lexington they decreased from 807 to 204.

WHISKY THEFT AND HOLD-UP NEAR COVINGTON WEDNESDAY

Two Automobile Trucks and $50,000 Worth of Whisky Taken When Near Covington—Empty Trucks Are Found.

A spectacular hold-up and robbery by whisky bandits on the Madison pike at a point five miles south of Covington, Ky., Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, is being investigated by the police of that city and the Cincinnati authorities, as it is believed the whisky was brought to the Ohio side of the river. Five hundred cases of whisky, valued in "bootlegging" prices at $100 a case, and two large automobile trucks in which the whisky was being conveyed, were stolen by the bandits. The whisky, said to have been on the way to New York city from the Labrol-Graham Distilling company of Frankfort, Ky., was in charge of a man who told the police he was Max Gross, 1547 Southern Boulevard, New York.

The trucks, with two automobiles containing guards, had arrived at a point known as Chisel Bridge, back of Covington, when suddenly four other automobiles appeared around a bend of the road, stopped and men armed with revolvers leaped out and ordered hands up. All obeyed, the truck drivers were told to get into the automobiles of the guards and then orders were given to the entire party to drive up a side road to a point near Nicholson, where they were held under guard by several of the bandits. Two others of the bandits took charge of the whisky trucks, driving them towards Covington. Wednesday morning two empty trucks were found on the Muddy Run pike, about two miles beyond Grovedale. Detectives Helflein and Guenther notified Covington authorities.

THE INDIANS KNEW.

A famous physician stated that more women might find relief from suffering through taking a medicine like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound than through undergoing surgical operations, if they would only take it in time. At the first sign of female weakness, as indicated by backache, dullness, bearing down pains and nervous exhaustion, take this famous remedy of roots and herbs, and avoid the serious consequences of delay.

The Indians and early settlers knew and benefitted by Nature's Allies, the roots and herbs of the field. Because Lydia E. Pinkham knew their medicinal value, thousands of women all over the world have been saved from operations, but only such as have taken it in time.
